The DevSecOps conference is back

We are returning to Boston once again for 2 days packed with the latest insights, inspiration and practical take aways about DevSecOps! We will bring together DevOps and Security in a unique DevSecOps conference run by practitioners, for practitioners. Join us for two days filled with inspiring talks and interactive workshops about DevSecOps – the practice of building security into development processes. This is your chance to learn from key industry experts, meet with your peers and learn how DevOps and Security can work together to make continuously secure development a reality.

In 2015 we hosted our first DevSecCon conference in London. It was so successful that now, in 2018, DevSecCon takes place in four locations across the globe. It's the world's only conference dedicated to DevSecOps – the practice of building security into development processes. Our conferences and training courses are packed with inspiring presentations by industry experts and networking opportunities, making it an invaluable event for anyone working in Development, DevOps and Security
