The clinical and digital innovation space continues to undergo huge growth and development, driven by an underlying maturity in implementation examples of digitally-enabled capabilities in clinical RandD, as well as an industry focus on patient-facing approaches.

The IMPACCT: mHealth in Clinical Trials series will again bring together the top clinical and digital leaders for a comprehensive and open discussion on how to support and drive the clinical innovation needed to make trials truly patient-centric, through the use of digital tools.

Join your peers at this collaborative discussion platform that aims to transform the way patient data is collected and utilized, rethink clinical trial methodologies, overcome key implementation challenges and promote patient-centricity in clinical studies with mobile and digital approaches.

Early booking and group discounts apply, start-up and academic rates are available - see the website for details.
